

Andersonville

History is made up of stories, some based in fact, some come from legend, and others are combination of the two.

A fact is a "thing that is known or proved to be true." There is evidence that supports the story.

A legend is a traditional story told about a particular place or person, and can include elements of folklore, mythology or explanations for natural occurrences.

In the case of Andersonville, the large quantity of primary sources from prisoners who survived their imprisonment give historians the tools needed to separate fact from fiction.
